Legacy Planning: Preparing for End- of-Life is a Heroic Act of Selfless Love

All marriages end at some point, but the most successful marriages end with the death of a spouse. Surviving spouses say they knew it would happen someday, but they never planned for it to happen when it did. Are you prepared for that eventuality? Shouldn't we be motivated to make things as easy as possible for our loved ones after we die? What can you do today to ease the pain for those you leave behind in the future?

This webinar will address the six critical areas to prepare yourself and your loved ones for the day you die, and beyond.
